To Everything

There Is a Season . . .

The life of a high school student is as varied as the seasons. Just as each season has its own special activities, so does every facet of school life.

There is a season for some things, and a season for all things; a season for great things, and a season for small things.

These "things" make up the kaleidoscopic life of a high school student—the many seasons through which he passes during the school year, each making its own special memories—moments to be relived for years to come.

We, the 1966 CALDRON staff, have tried in the following pages to capture these many and varied seasons.

Ann Wolfe and Judy Graves, Editors

Before the first bell rings, students congregate in the halls to discuss classwork or just to chat with friends.

 $\mbox{Mr. Alva Wells, SHS}$ principal, enters his office to begin the day's work.

In the T&I Building the students find an excellent opportunity to develop their outstanding skills.

To Begin

Harrison Annex again provides for the overflow of SHS students.

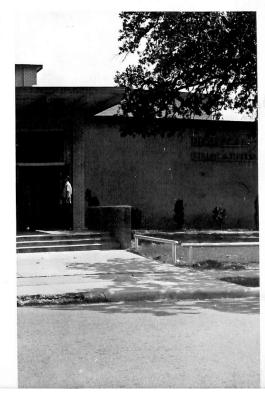

The front door of Shawnee High School—gateway to education and lasting friendships.

The beginning of another day for SHS students.

To the right: the gym scene of the Wolves' many basketball victories.

National Merit Scholarship semi-finalists, Michael Svec, Sherry Jones, Allan Emery, and John Heinze eagerly await the finals.

SHS faculty begin their rigorous year of work by attending the teachers' meeting.

To Learn

Karen Wiley portrays the reverence shown by many SHS students.

Mrs. Judy Deem, new addition to SHS faculty, explains typing techniques to her students.

Soon the SHS parking lot will be filled to capacity as students and faculty take full advantage of the space.

To Adapt

Students wend their way through crowded halls during class changes.

Lunch line provides a good place for renewing friendships and gaining new acquaintances.

Students in Miss Martin's algebra class pore over their problems.

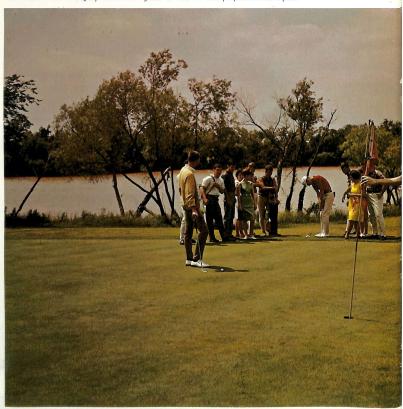

David Hunt finds that cramming books and wraps into a locker is a necessary part of school life. Jennifer Eighmy offers valuable assistance.

To Play

SHS students crowd eagerly around the green as Don Fitzwater prepares to sink a putt.

"Ready, aim, twang!" Archery provides fun and exercise for the girls' gym classes.

 $^{\prime\prime}\text{Go Wolves!}$ Beat Demons! $^{\prime\prime}$ was the battle cry at the first SHS home game. And we won!

Every Tuesday morning Student Council representatives meet to discuss current problems.

Participating in the Ray Le Crone parade, SHS students show the community their school spirit.

Wolves Journal staff members interview several AFS students who stopped in Shawnee for the 4th of July weekend. These were students who had studied in California for the past year and were on their way to New York City to begin the journey home.

Hi-Y boys take a tour of the new YMCA building provided for their meetings and activities.

 ${\bf Students}$ join in a demonstration of school loyalty at the Wolves' first pep assembly.

Tri-Hi-Y secretary Janene Reynolds accepts dues from Rosalie Riddle.

To Participate

 $\mbox{\sc Pep Band}$ members prepare to boost SHS spirit with another rousing song.

Mike Taron, Barbara Terry, and Jennifer Eighmy help out by addressing invitations to the Junior-Senior reception.

To Complete

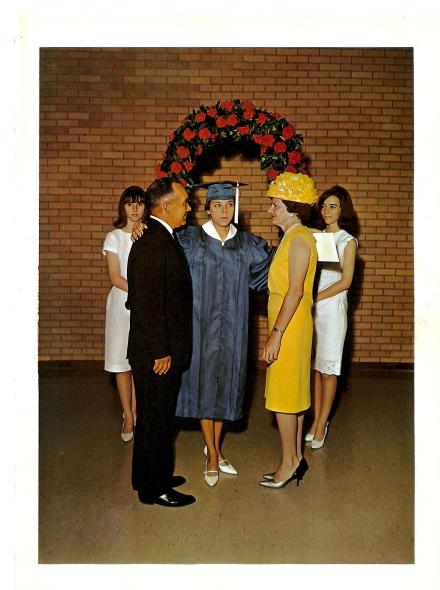

Jane Collin measures Ronny Jones for his cap and gown as Ann Wolfe records the measurements.

On opposite page: Janene Reynolds beams happily at graduation—the climax of twelve long, happy years.

Bright and early graduation morning, junior girls, Jefflyn Huddleston and Peggy Ford are out gathering ivy to decorate the arches.

Steinar Hansson, AFS exchange student from Norway, presides over his homeroom as president.

Brett Mitchell and Carol Cutlip, talented SHS seniors, work diligently on their musical.

To Remember

Epey, the toothbrush stealer portrayed by Jimmy Hight, tries to make his get-away from Janey Richards and Ernie Cossey.

Nora Marchese, Argentine exchange student, works diligently during class.

Come rain or shine, heat or cold, loyal Wolves supporters will go to any length to cheer the team.

Even though squeals shook the audience, students enjoyed the assembly given by Mr. Bob Jenni.

Students in Mrs. Deem's homeroom hang the decorations they brought for her "little" tree.

On blue and white days, Mrs. Williamson mixes pep with teaching.

To Appreciate

Taking the responsibility of advising students in the Elks' Leadership and Scholarship Contests, Mrs. Williamson has guided Sherry and Ronny to victory in the State Elks' Leadership Contest.

To be dedicated is to be deserving. To unceasingly dedicate one's time, effort, and help makes a teacher deserving of recognition.

This year we have chosen a teacher who has instilled in us an inspiration to reach for and attain the highest goals in knowledge and character.

Her dedication to her students reaches beyond the classroom. Together with her duties as English teacher, she takes the responsibility of being a Pep Club sponsor and advisor of the Caldron. For the dedicated love and guidance she has given us, we, the Caldron staff, dedicate this 1966 yearbook to our completely unsuspecting sponsor, Mrs. LaHoma Williamson.

> Mrs. Williamson doesn't let cold weather hamper her spirits. As a pep club sponsor, she bundles up and attends the games.

In addition to her regular classes and pep club, Mrs. Williamson puts in many extra hours as advisor of the Caldron.

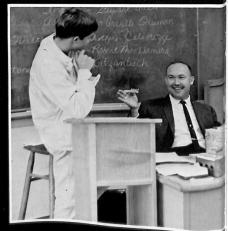

Gathered around her desk, Rick Vandaveer, Diane Tillery, Gayle Bradshaw, and Susan Bowles consult Spanish teacher Miss Mary Trinkle about homework.

Beginning another busy day, Mrs. Karen Holleron, business teacher, signs in.

Administration,

A Season to Teach

"Readin' an' Writin' an 'Rithmetic"—the three

"Readin' an' Writin' an 'Rithmetic'—the three R's.

Shawnee High School faculty members teach these three and a host of other subjects. However, teachers do much more than teach—they counsel, they sponsor, they contribute their time and effort to train the leaders needed for tomorrow's world.

The season to teach is not an easy one. It requires much "homework" to prepare the next day's lessons. It often involves coming early before school and staying late after school to give a student further help.

The season to teach is a varied one—a season to withstand, a season to overcome, and a season to withstand, a season to overcome, and a season to accomplish.

Attending the first meeting of the school year are School Board members Mr. Ray Padgett, Dr. Bob McLaughlin, Mr. Clyde and Mr. Roy Marler. Theresa Myers, Mr. Riley Williamson, Mr. A. W. Brokaw, Mrs. Theresa Myers, Mr. E. S. Drake, and Mr. Roy Marler.

Mr. A. Willard Brokaw, superintendent of schools, examines final copy for an upcoming speech.

Administrators

In collaboration with Mr. Brokaw and Mr. Searcy, the School Board members work to create a smooth-running, efficient school system. These members donate their time and effort unceasingly to mold the future of Shawnee's excellent schools. Mr. Brokaw and Mr. Searcy are influential and enthusiastic SHS supporters, having added new equipment and renovated several parts in SHS during their tenures of office.

Checking over the agenda for his next school board meeting is Mr. Norman Searcy, assistant superintendent.

Mr. W. Alva Wells, SHS principal, calls for more information about an upcoming assembly.

Function Well Together

With his wide range of interests, Mr. W. Alva Wells is the versatile principal of Shawnee High School. Making his students his major interest, Mr. Wells is well-liked and respected not only by students and faculty but also by citizens of the community.

Mr. Jerrell Chesney, assistant principal, keeps a busy schedule. In addition to conferring with Mr. Wells about major school matters, he is athletic director and head basketball coach.

Attending to their many duties are the secretaries at the superintendent's office.

Hoping for more SHS victories, Mr. Jerrell Chesney checks over the sales of basketball tickets.

Never too busy to council with a troubled student, Mr. Bob Williams listens intently to the problem.

Counselors and Secretaries

Working together for students' benefit, Shawnee High School counselors, Mrs. Ola Mae Clarke and Mr. Bob Williams, share in molding both the social and academic future of the students. For those planning to further their education in college, the counselors provide help in selecting the right courses and colleges. The students who do not plan to continue their education find that Mrs. Clarke and Mr. Williams make recommendations for their enrolling in the proper vocational courses.

Mr. Williams make recommendations for their en-rolling in the proper vocational courses.

Secretaries at SHS have an unlimited amount of work. In addition to secretarial duties, Mrs. Bowen, our registrar, is always busy recording grades and sending transcripts to colleges. In the attendance office, Mrs. Bennett keeps a finger on the where-abouts of each student, carefully recording each absence and tardy.

Mrs. Ola Mae Clarke thumbs through her files in search of a schedule sheet.

Shawnee High School's well-stocked library offers numerous volumes for both reading and research. Students can find enjoyable adventures in reading the classical and modern authors.

Helping her students in perfecting the French language, Mrs. Sheila Perry trains them in pronunciation, through the use of the language lab.

Checking in books is only one of the many duties of Mrs. Joyce Pipps, SHS librarian.

English can be the key that unlocks doors of adventure, knowledge, excitement, and scholastic attainment. Using English as a necessary tool, one can read and become an explorer of the past. Seniors undertake English literature, notably Macbeth, and further their study in grammar. Later in the year they employ all their knowledge in writing a term theme.

Huckloberry Finn comes alive to juniors as they study it and other works in American literature.

Reading Julius Caesar and Silas Marner becomes the course of study for sophomores. In addition to these they intensively study grammar and its rules.

The business department prepares students for immediate employment or higher education. After taking dictation and transcribing notes in shorthand class, students are ready for secretarial work. A course in notehand prepares college bound seniors for fast talking professors. Typing classes work for speed and accuracy. IBM keypunch, filing, and other office techniques are taught in a new course, office practice.

The home economics department prepares girls for homemaking, or interests them in further education in this field.

Fine Arts Develop Culture at SHS

Students who are interested in improving themselves culturally may take courses in any of the fine arts.

In addition to learning stage techniques, drama students study the history of the theatre from its Greek beginnings to the twentieth century. Forensics students prepare for contest work. The stage-craft class builds sets for all school productions.

The Shawnee High School band performs at football games and gives concert programs to the students. The pep band boosts school spirit at pep assemblies and basketball games.

Competing at state contests and entertaining students with Christmas, Easter, and concert programs is work enjoyed by chorus members.

The aim of the art department is to develop natural talents to stimulate students to express themselves creatively. Studying the techniques of old masters is one way students learn correct style.

Learn Useful Skills

Training students to secure a good job after graduation is the aim of Shawnee High's Trade and Industrial school. This is done by participating in actual projects.

The electronics department is divided into three, one year courses. Basic electronics is taught the first year. Advanced students take courses in television and communications.

Learning the basic principals of drafting is the goal of the drafting department. Drafting students enter state contests each April.

The printing department prints the Wolves Journal, football and basketball programs, and other school materials.

Students in auto mechanics learn to repair cars and to keep them in top condition.

The annual project of the carpentry department is building a house.

Students in machine shop and welding learn to work with the tools that they will use after graduation.

On the job training is available to students enrolled in Diversifed Occupations and Distributive Education.

Students interested in farming may take Vocational Agriculture. They learn soil conditions and methods of preventing soil erosion.

After overhauling the car, Bobby Pickens examines the rear end.

Both the boys' and girls' gym classes help students keep fit.

Archery, basketball, volleyball, whiffelball, pingpong, the trampoline, tumbling, and dancing keep the girls in gym busy throughout the year. They also do exercises to a record and learn beginning tennis.

Sore muscles are common as the boys' physical education classes begin the year. Because the emphasis is on physical fitness, the boys do strenuous exercises each day.

In addition to these, basketball, slaughterball, volleyball, and ping-pong are taught.

To promote physical fitness and add variety to classwork, both boys' and girls' gym classes learn trampoline jumping.

Keeping fit by playing basketball is a favorite sport of all boys.

Others Who Help Us

Keeping the halls clean is the responsibility of Coy Harren, Sam Short, and George Hood.

Shawnee High School students enjoy the food prepared by Ruby Lanier, Fay Davenport, Mayme Bowen, and Pearl Click.

Checking for trouble in the engine, Ernie Gray, Larry Floyd, and Charles Larson find that nothing is wrong.

With brush in hand, Linda DeShields adds shading to her picture.

Reaching into her desk for more paper, Ann Hurd is ready to begin translating French.

A Season to Learn

The season to learn is probably the hardest season in a school year. Most people think of learning as being only academic, applying to such subjects as math, science, history, and English.

For a sophomore the first day at Shawnee High School can be beffling. The new building, new teachers, and new subjects have to be learned. The sophomore season changes rapidly as the activities of high school begin from one of not belonging to one of belonging.

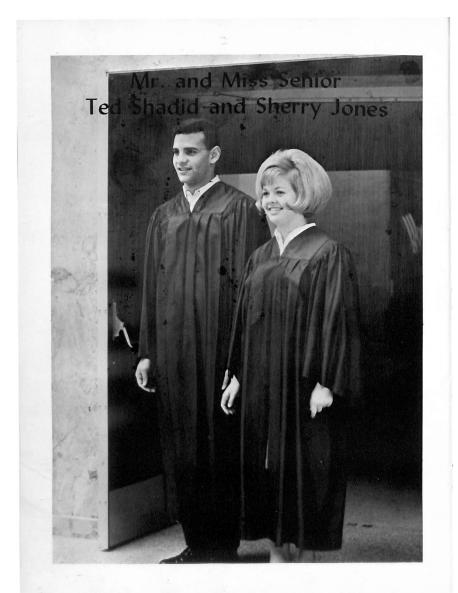

To a junior the new year means no longer being the youngest. This is the year of ordering class rings, archbearer try-outs, and physics.

The senior is the oldest member in the season of learning. He knows the building, the teachers, and everything about everything. This year is filled with many new experiences. All of these are aimed at the climax of the season of learning—Graduation.

A Season to Lead

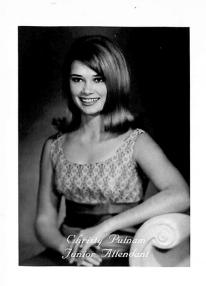

The season to lead is important at SHS. Our leaders perform in a variety of different ways. Some are chosen because of beauty, some because of brains. But all are outstanding. Among our high school leaders are future community and world leaders. High school elections are as pressure filled as the big time ones. Our leaders will be prepared for the future.

Student Council . . .

Getting ready to leave for an OASC convention in Duncan, Robert Eversole, Rick Cornwell, Betty Pitt, Jane Collin, and Mrs. Clarke load the car.

To give each student a chance to voice his opinions on school activities is the main objective of Student Council. The Shawnee High School Student Council of 1965-66 sponsored worthwhile projects. Some of these were football and basketball coronations, class elections, a leadership workshop, Christmas door decorating contest, and student directories. This was also the first year that Student Council has sponsored two foreign exchange students, Nora Marchese and Steinar Hansson.

Taking a coke break at the Leadership Workshop, area students get better acquainted.

Student Council officers and sponsors are Mike Svec, Betty Pitt, Mrs. Ola Mae Clark, Jane Collin, Mr. Bill Malone, Allen Emery, Robert Eversole, and Rick Cornwell.

To my dearest Shawnee High:

The year has passed so fast that I can barely believe I have to leave. It has been the shortest year of my whole life, but the richest in happiness, experience, and understandings.

SHS has given me its best friendship, and I should like to express how grateful I am with another word than "thanks." But I cannot find it, and as I want you to realize how special is my THANK YOU TO SHS, I'll tell you that this is the deepest one I have ever said.

I am going back . . . I leave in Shawnee a big part of my heart, and I am taking home with me and forever, all the love I received from you.

I don't want to say good-bye because it is sad and hard; besides, I have the feeling that I'll come back someday to see you all again.

Have my love always,

To the Students of SHS: When I left Norway last year, Shawnee, Oklahoma, was nothing more than a spot on Oktahoma, was nothing more than a spot on the map. After spending this year here, I certainly can say this town, this school, and the people here mean so much more. It has been a real home for me, not only because of my wonderful American family, but also by the way you students have let me be "one of you" by sharing your activities and daily life with me.

me. Despite all the apparent differences between our countries, there are so many things that have a close relationship. I have found that the emotions and thoughts of man are similar even though customs and habits may differ. My admiration and respect for America has grown largely during the time I have been here, but I have also had the opportunity to see my own country from the outside, and to un-derstand and appreciate better the good

A look back on my stay shows so many memorable events that I don't know how to thank everyone. The experiences you have given me through the different clubs, on the football field, in the classes, during track practice, and at all the other happenings, have helped to make this year the most exciting and challenging in my life.

The only way I can express my gratefulness is by telling each one of you "Tusen takk"—

Vaudeville''

The house lights had dimmed, the overture had begun, and The Wonderful World of Vaudeville had gotten underway.

The theme of this year's Talent Show was one which honored two eras of entertainment, the old and the new. Its overwhelming success proved that there was still an interest in the "good old days" of that "mystical, magical, wonderful world of vaudeville."

Under the guidance of Miss Kay Keller, faculty director, three seniors played an important part in the production. Brett Mitchell wrote, orchestrated, and conducted all the music: Carol Cutlip wrote lyrics and served as student director, and Jan Appleby was choreographer.

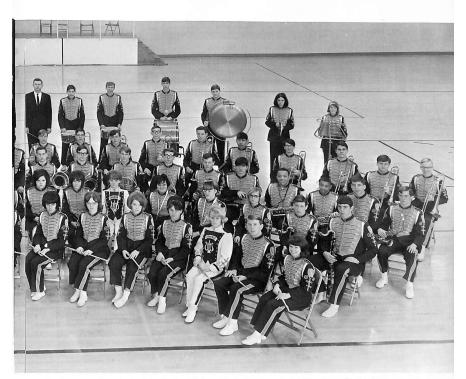

Handicapped by a broken arm, Miss Keller still admits, "The show must go on."

As well as concerts for the high school, the Shawnee orchestra competes in the District contest in Ada and the State Contest at Norman. Students also attended the Oklahoma State Music Festival in the fall. Orchestra sponsor, Mr. Paul Boone was elected president of the Oklahoma String Teachers' Association. Six students, Gene Purdue, Clark Haggard, Linda Dolive, Mary Kaiser, Kathy Scheidt, and Susan Ersland made All-State Orchestra.

V-I-C-T-O-R-Y

Arousing school spirit and enthusiasm, the Wolverette and Wolverine pep clubs faithfully supported the Wolves. Dressed in the traditional blue and white, these three hundred girls cheered the Wolves in victory and defeat. Posters, balloons, skits, and assemblies were several spirit-boosting for each home football and basketball game, a huge paper hoop dramatized the entrance of the players. For the first time the Pep Club members made nominations for Miss Ideal Pep Club Girl. Ann Wolfe was chosen on the basis of spirit, attendance, and cooperation.

This school year the Hi-Y Club conducted many worthwhile activities. At the first of November, the club carried on its annual rummage sale. During the Christmas Holidays, members repaired toys to make a happier Christmas for the underprivileged children.

The Hi-Yer's delighted each of their teachers at the annual Apple Polishers Banquet held in January. Our meetings were made happier by the attendance of our Hi-Y Sweetheart, Betty Pitt.

This year Y.M.C.A. members enjoyed their beautiful new buildings. Members could work out with weights, play handball, basketball, and table tennis. Soon to be built is an Olympic-size swimming pool.

This Christmas season Hi-Y members helped the Salvation Army with the repairing of toys for many Shawnee children.

As service projects the Tri-Hi-Y girls helped in the Mothers March and Celebral Palsy March and also rang bells for the Salvation Army at Christmas time. The Snowman Dance and Tri-Hi-Y Style Show were major activities of the year.

Helping members to decide on a career in medicine is the main objective of Medical Explorers. At each meeting, members talk to local doctors about the many facets of medicine. Working as orderlies at Mission Hill Hospital, members have also learned the routine and duties of the hospital.

"V-I-C-T-O-R-Y! That's the Shawnee battle cry!"

And long may it be heard.

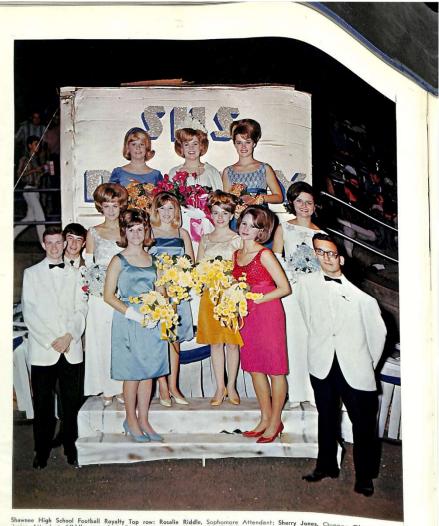

SHS students experience the ecstasy of victory, the consternation of defeat. Both are in abundance, but are accepted with humility and graciousness.

Sports in high school are not a one-sided affair. Faculty and students alike back the Wolves all the way no matter what the game—football, basketball, baseball, tennis, track, or cross-country.

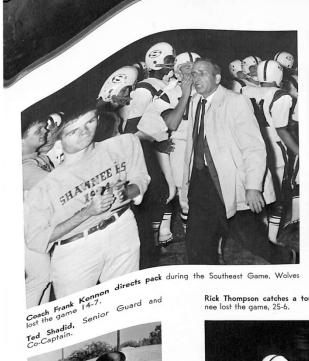

The season for sports is a season to play, a season to work toward a goal and achieve its purpose, and a season to accept defeat and come back the next time to win.

A Season to Buy and Sell

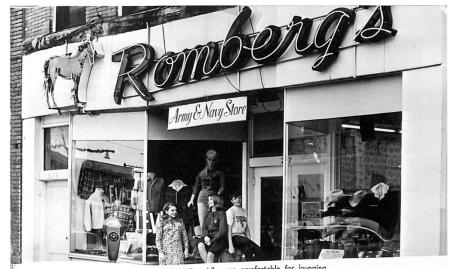

Without the season to buy and sell all activity in the world would end.

the world would end.
Even though many people think that we teenagers are not important to this season, it is estimated that we spend over eighteen million dollars a year.
Teenagers buy everything from school supplies to cosmetics to clothes. Some of us have jobs to earn our own money. We learn to budget our money and to make good buys, because we realize that in one, two, or three years, we will be on our own and will have to make our own decisions.

When we put our heads together *we were reminded that Oklahoma Baptist University is world famous for Liberal Arts program. How did we know? Because some of its graduates are now working in nearly 120 different countries of the globe. Why, one of its professors just left on a two year's leave of absence to teach chemistry in Africa. He'll be back, of course.

*also, we thought about the school's basketball, baseball, track, cross-country and tennis teams and what good records each has. Remember when the Bison played in the NAIA finals? Or, how about the OBU freshman who won the NAIA cross-country title—in the snow (he's the one who runs barefooted.)

*then we talked about the choral groups that take such wonderful trips as a USO tour of Europe, a three week trip to California, a ten-day tour of six nearby states, or a special trip to make an album and all the special attention available from the music faculty.

*further, we discussed the high academic rating the school has since it's accredited by NCA of C and SS, NA of S of M and the NL for N, plus holding membership in AA of C for TE and AA of UW. Students who earn good grades can join highly recognized groups such as Omicron Delta Kappa and Zeta Chi, and we remembered that OBU—percentagewise—has had more Woodrow Wilson Fellows than any other school in Oklahoma *and then, it really hit us. OBU is located right here in Shawnee, and we could live at home while completing requirements for a degree in elementary education, music, religious education, philosophy, chemistry, art, English, government, home economics, psychology, etc. etc.

*we were convinced—financially, academically, vocationally, athletically and on and on—that OBU would be a good thing for us to have going.

Care to join us?
